

- Name: Gian Franco Zannoni
 - Current Position & Affiliation: Full Professor of Anatomic Pathology at the Catholic University of Rome
 - Country: Italy
-

• Educational Background:

Gian Franco Zannoni obtained his medical and specific degree from the Catholic University in Rome, Italy. He is a specialist in Pathologist. He is European Board of Pathology Certified.

• Professional Experience:

Gian Franco Zannoni, MD, is the director of General Pathology at Policlinico Gemelli in Rome. He is a member of International Society of Gynecological Pathologists and in charge of the Gynecological Division of the Italian Society of Pathology.

He is involved in gynecological/oncological diagnoses and investigator in several projects including “the evaluation of Prognostic Factors in Gyn Tract”, “descriptions of new entities” and studies in “post chemotherapeutical changes”, and has collaborated with oncologists and gynecologists in several clinical trials.

• Professional Organizations:

He is an expert panel member in committees for the European guidelines for such matters as “fertility sparing treatment in endometrial cancer” and “vulvar carcinoma”.

He is also an author of three editions of the “WHO Classification Tumors” in “Female Genital Tumors”.

He is a panelist in the International Society of the Gynecological cancer and a member of the Tumor Board in Kazakhstan and PARSGO

He has organised several congresses and has been invited to numerous international and domestic congress as Chair and Keynote Speaker.

• Main Scientific Publications:

Gian Franco Zannoni is an author of more than 450 papers in peer reviewed journals and many field relevant book chapters.

He has served as editorial board member in various international gynecological journals and is a member of several panels for domestic and international guidelines.